HONGROVA. NOVEMBER 10TH, 1883.

"Honggong's Chinese population amounts to 170,000 and is rapidly increasing. English merchants are suncombing and their trade is going to Chinamen, and the practical expulsion of Europeans is probably only errived here yesterday from Canton. a question of time. Victoria had better give the island back to the Emperor Kwang Su." Such is the opinion of a San Francisco paper, and such, too, is the opinion, so far as the first part of the quotation is concerned, of other superficial observers. There can be no doubt that the Chinese have largely eaten into the local business that used in former days to be almost exclusively in the hands of foreigners; they charter steamers on the coast, and do the bulk of the trade with Cochin-China, Siam, and other neighbouring countries; and this_business_they-carry-on very successfully. "One of the conditions which chiefly handicap Westerns in any competition with Easterns is," says a Japan contemperary, "the difference between Occidental and Oriental scales of living. We see its effects here in Yokohama. Little by little they [the Chinese] have established themselves in branches of trade which were formerly monopolized by foreigners, and many of them, from humble, insignificant prosperous businesses, persavering, all the fashions of life." A Chinaman can, unprofits than a European. But there is a limit to the scope of his activity; the trade between China and European countries and America will remain in the purposes designed, and say that a certain manhands of Westerns. Some time ago the Chinese, with a flourish of trumpets, established a native agency in London for the inauguration of "direct trade," Little has been heard lately about this undertaking, nor are we likely to hear much of it. However astute and clever the Chinaman may be on his own ground, he stands but a poor chance of success in the busy commercial metropolis of the world. His business habits | ted within a radius of ten miles about Macao are altogether unsuited to the conditions. and there are not wanting plenty of unscrulous persons who will be ready and willing to take advantage of his weakness. It will pay the Chinaman much better to stay at the description of various branches of the merchants at Hongkong and the Treaty dedicated to His Majesty Dom Lais I., and will pikestaff!" Ports, for the experiment of "direct trade" cannot but end in failure. Harking buck therefore to the quotation from the San Francisco paper, instead of the "practical expulsion of Europeans" from Hongkong being "only a question of time," their numbers are not likely to decrease much at present, while in the future, when Chica is more fully opened up and her foreign trade receives the expansion it inevitably will do sooner or later, the number of Europeans must largely increase.

COMMODORE SHUPELDT is of opinion that the United States squadron in Chinese waters should be strengthened, and for reasons similar to those on which Englishmen hold that the British squadron should be so distributed as to afford protection to British subjects and trade instead of periodically going off for a cruise in the Northern Seas. the truth is that pretext for an outbreak in all the open ports where foreigners reside. Those only who have resided in China, perhaps, will realize the uncontrollable character of a Chinese mob. On such occasions the authorities are not only ignored, but if need be are crushed. It is this danger which foreigners have to fronting on a river, with a commerce third ad the opportunity of hearing no less than three brenk downs for a suitable simile to describe the extent to which the Universities and Public Schools had been defeated-"put through," as it would be in slang parlance, but I hate slang parlance; and, in view of my correspondent "Schoolboy's" recent upbraiding on the score of "nationals," it is it mest assuredly can be written of thema painful thing to think that in this wapid age we have so frequently to fly to the assistance of "slang" to make clear what we mean, especially when using a simils to express it. The English language some few years ago was said to be in transition state and that the slaug of that day would be the polished phreseology of the future (1) Radical of fifty years ago, or less. " what is Old Boots ?" "It," some one supposes, is " the page," an ingeconversant with racing metaphor must readily allow. Again, it is saked, what state of moral rectitude is expressed in the simile "as right as ninepence"? Why should the lifelessness of "mutton" and "door-nails" be proverbial intelligible, and "as hot as blazes" to have a definite meaning, but what period of time is meant by "till all's blue "P " As jolly as a sandhoy " has been declared to convey no notion of bilarity. The demand for kittens' honds has become so important that oat-breeding has become a regular business during the past summer." It is hardly necessary to say these Parisian freaks of fashion concern the feminine world only. Doubtless it is possible, in view of the foregoing description, for a lady to spend sixty dollars over a hat, but it must be admitted that the result would be a far more wonderful and interesting structure than the Korean nobleman's horsehair head covering.

The American correspondent first referred to gives a description of the Korean dress which is worth reproduction :- " The outer garments consist of a pair of baggy trousers stack into padded stockings, the latter so large that they give the wearer the appear . Tee of one suffering from gout in the feet; an ve nese a cotton jacket, and over all a robo or gown, which resembles a lady'u morning wrapper as much as anything else, although it might easily be mistaken for a night shirt. This outside wrap is tied about the weist, and the Koroan is dressed, except as to the articles that he carries with him. First of all comes the pipe; and this is an article that no true Korean is ever without. Next, he has attached to his girdle his show knife and chop sticks and two bags. In one of these he carries his tobacco, and the other contains his pocketbook, if he has one, and several articles for the toilet. He may also carry an oil paper cover for his bat, in case. it should min. If he owns a watch, that is also carried at his gille in a fob. Nearly all of the better class wear glassed of some sort, and those being very large and set in tortoise-shell frames of corresponding dimensions, they add another distinguishing mark when in their box and attached to the belt." Although this costume is distinctly different from the Chinese dress, thereare, of course, some points of resemblance, and I am sorry to say that, as a rule, the Korean looks better and more picturesque at a distance; closer examination too often reveals an absence of cleanliness that dispais the first favourable.

I remark that the Whitchall Review has taken up its parable with regard to the Opine Question. Referring to the costliness of the drug, the Review observes "a poor Chinaman can no more indulge in opium than a poor Englishman can drink champagner". Never was a greater failacy! The periodical lays down false premises and argues to a necessarily fallacious conclusion. The cases are by no means in pari conditions. The syllogism set up by the Review is "thusly" :- Champagnosis costly, therefore the poor Englishman cannot indulge in it; but caunot indulge in opium. More utter rubbish could not be spoken or penned. It would be equally reasonable to argue that because a house costs $10,000 a poor man cannot buy a brick. The fact is that opium, of an inferior quality truly, but sufficient for several pipes, may be penny? As a matter of fast some of the most miserable beggarly attenuations amongst the lowest stratum of the Chinese are habitual opium-smokers. Let me quote one more romark from the article in question :- " Dr. Ayres is not far beside the mark when he declares that a vast deal of nonsense has been talked over the opium smoking problem." True, and the Whitehall Review has contributed its quota to that nonsense.

BANTAN. SUSPICIOUS DEATH OF A CHINAMAN.

An inquest was held at the Civil Hospital vester. day afternoon, before the Coroner and a jury composed of Massrs. J. A. Ahlmann, A. J. Aitken. and A. A. dos Remedios, to investigate the circumstances attending the death of a Chinaman named Young Awai, the proceedings being chiefly instituted on account of suspicious of foul play autertained by a brother of the deceased. The deceased had been living with a woman a number of years, who of late has had another sweetheart, and the suspicions of the brother are that these two poisoned his brother to get rid of him and obtain his effects. The woman and the new sweetheart have been arrested by the police on a charge of stealing the deceased's . 'y. The following evidence

Dr. Marques, Assistant Superintendent of the Government O.vil Hospital, stated that after the admission of the body to the hospital he made, by direction of the Coroner, a post morten examination of the body. The organs were healthy with the exception of the lungs. kidney, and spleen, which were congested. The congestion was, he believed, the cause of death, and he was of opinion that the congestion was caused by a cold, but it might have been produced by an overdose of opium. She said it was hers too, but later on the brother saw it and claimed it as the deceased's. The womam then admitted it was the deceased's, and gave it up. The man arrested plso had a pillow box and some man arrested was a sweetheart of hers, and she had given him the things to take away.

Inspector Thomson said he had communicated satisfied about the case; and he asked him if he was satisfied that congestion of the lungs caused death. SER, -With so grand an event as the reconeyes—an event in which the interests of the last month. This is the second capture of Chi-Colony are so greatly involved—it seems strange ness made by Matheson, who deserves great that no public opinion on the subject has yet book expressed, save what appeared in your lead. In spite of the fact that several of them had ing columns and in those of your contemporaries. As to the official element the silence of the public is quite significant of approval; but with regard to the unofficial members there is much to be said. As it is on them that the public is to rely for the representation of its views, the liveliest interest should naturally be taken in their election, and so I hope that it will not be thought out of place to freely discuss the matter. The two public bodies from which the new honourables are to be elected are certainly the most prominent and representative in the Colony, but they are for from representing the whole interest of the various communities; by the solitary annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, its meagre attendance, and the cold interest the public usually takes in its proceedings, little can be known of the abilities and competency of its components. The Justices of the Peace contain among themselves a good aprink-

It would be very well to have a heathen member at the Connoil table, considering that we are living on the border of the Chinese Fupire, and that the enermous Chinese interest in the Colony should be represented, but when we think that their grievances and requirements frequently appear in the form of addresses and petitions presented before the Government by the leading Shortly before noon the tide went out, but fifteen Chinese residents, and that the most prominent among them is but a newly arrived gentleman who cannot be much more conversant with Chiness affairs than many of us, their claim appears weaker, and their raison d'être at the Council may be questioned.

THE LADIES' TENNIS COURTS. TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS." DEAR SIE, -I have been much pleased to ob. serve the progress made with the ladies' tennis courts below the Peak road, which will soon be ready for use. But on what terms have the ladies acquired the land? I have been informed that it has been practically given to them by the Government. The squatter who previously occupied it and had it under cultivation has been, I hope, compensated for disturbance. If it be true that the land has been given by the Govern. ment, it seems to me that the public have some right to be informed of the constitution of the club. No one could possibly object to a piece of ground being set apart for the recreation of the ladies, just as the Cricket Ground is set apart for the recreation of the opposite sex. But see. in usurping the functions of government in uping that the land is public property, it ought to holding the law may achieve the opposite result be used for the public advantage, not for that of a small coterie, and the constitution of the new elub will therefore, I hops, be analogous to that of the Cricket Club, for membership in which arisen. LETTERS FOR THE UNITED STATES BY SAILING

When it is lesired to forward letters to the United States by a sailing ship which is not notifled as carrying a mail; it is only necessary to post the letters in the ordinary way, marked with the name of the ship, and prepaid 10 cents per half ounce as usual. The Post Office then undertakes the duty of obtaining notice of departure, and despatching the correspondence. It is requested that the letters be posted if possible at least one day before the date fixed for sailing Letters containing Stamps should be regi tered, and the Stamps should be secured from Observation.
